1,200 Carp Are Caught In Gutters of Streets

Salt Lake City, March 6 (A.P.) .-This city went fishing in the gutters today and took around 1,200 carp. The fish, seined from Utah Lake, near here, by the State game and fish department, were loosed in the gutters, where water runs the year around, as a publicity stunt for a sportsmen's meeting.

Whether the "bait" will swell the attendance remains to be seen, but small boys and their elders engaged in a mad scramble up and down the main street until all the finny visi tors had been captured.

Present advices indicate that the military situation is somewhat similar to that which developed in the spring of 1920, when Carranza was overthrown by Obregon, with the support of much of the regular army. In that case, as in the present instance, the revolt was initiated in the State of Sonora, the most northerly state which, with the adjoining State of Sinaloa, is walled off from the remainder of Mexico by high mountain ranges. Later tonight the government an-nounced officially that the Escobar troops which fled from Monterey had been routed out of Saltillo. They were reported headed for Torreon on the estern border of Coahuila.

The latter is in open rebellion and has taken over military centers of importance. He captured Monterey, one of the most important strategic railway centers in the country, since it controls the eastern route from the border to Mexico City. Federal forces made a converging attack on Monterey from several different directions and regained the city.

The revolutionists, on the other hand, are understood to be counting on a convergent attack southward along the lines of the successful campaign waged by Obregon against Carranza. They figure that the whole operation can be put into effect within a month. The defeat of Carranza followed the disaf-

LAWYERS IN CONFERENCE

Chicago, March 6 (A.P.).—Representatives of John D. Rockefeller, jr., who will try to oust Col. Robert W. DEATH OF TAGGART ENDS NOTED CAREER

Democratic Leader Dies at 72, Following Long Stomach Illness.

NOMINATED WILSON IN '12

Indianapolis, March 6 (U.P.).—Thomas Taggart, who started in life as a lunchroom sweeper in the obscure town of Xenis, Ohio, and rose to be one of the greatest leaders in the Democratic party, died at his home here today following a long illness.

Stomach trouble caused the death of the famous political general, know as the man who successfully directed the nomination of Woodrow Wilson for President in 1912. Taggart was in his seventy-third year.

President in 1912. Taggart was in his seventy-third year.

Early last November the Indiana leader, who was honored by his party with various political offices, chief of which was the United States senatorship, collapsed and since had been under the constant care of physicians.

The first attack was on the eve of the November election, the day before Herbert Hoover was given an overwhelming victory over Alfred E. Smith. Since that time he had occasional relapses and last night his physicians announced he was sinking rapidly. Today he was in a coma until death.

MR. HOOVER'S FIRST AIM.

President Hoover made plain in his inaugural address that law enforcement will be the major objective of his administration. "Justice must not fail because the agencies of enforcement are either delinquent or inefficiently organized," he asserted. "To consider these evils, to find their remedy, is the most sore necessity of our times." Although he has been in the White House but three days, Mr. Hoover is about to appoint a national commission for a searching investigation of the Federal system of jurisprudence. The success of his undertaking will be measured largely by the functioning of this commission. -

The problem involved is much broader than the enforcement of the prohibition law. The President recognizes that the growing disregard and disobedience of law is due only in part to the eighteenth amendment. It will be the duty of the commission to determine wherein the administration of justice is growing weaker and to recommend improvements in the administration of Federal laws and in court procedure. For this reason it is assumed that the commission will consist largely of eminent jurists. Law enforcement and judicial reform are, generally speaking, legal questions, and should be studied by the most able lawyers of the country. If the President could secure the services of such men as Charles E. Hughes the investigation would command the confidence of the public and would undoubtedly result in practical recommendations.

Appointment of this commission will test the ability of the President. Agitation over prohibition has reached a stage where appointment of a commission that would be prejudiced either for or against the Volstead act would be immediately discredited by the public. Mr. Hoover has already proved that his interest in the matter goes much deeper than the partial bickerings of the "wets" and the "drys." He recognizes the abuses that have grown up around the enforcement of prohibition, and will no doubt assign this important task to a body of men who are able to probe clear to the bottom of the problem in an impartial manner. The value of the recommendations to evolve from the inquiry will depend entirely on the integrity and the impartiality of the commission membership.

Mr. Hoover is to be congratulated on tackling this biggest problem of his administration at the very beginning. He sincere in demanding increased strength for the whole judicial and law enforcement systems, and his enterprise deserves the support of the entire country. Now that the Government has decided to lead the way, the States, whose systems of jurisprudence and law enforcement machinery are perhaps more in need of reform than the Federal practices, should fast in line and offer their cooperation.

The program President Hoover has mapped out is the most ambitious undertaking of recent times. If he should change the United States from a lawignoring to a law-abiding nation in four years, he will have performed a modern

GEN. LORD REMAINS.

President Hoover's reputation for surrounding himself with capable assistance is further confirmed by his reappointment of Gen. Herbert M. Lord as director of the Bureau of the Budget. Gen. Lord has filled this important post under two Presidents, and his reappointment is recognition of his valuable services as Since Gen. Lord became director of the Budget Bureau, about a year following the enactment of the budget and accounting law, he must be given credit for much of the successful operation of the bureau. The budget system, by superseding the hit-and-miss method of making estimates, has given the Executive control of all departments in recommending expenditures, and has made a unified financial policy possible.

Reappointment of Gen. Lord assures the Hoover administration capable advice and cooperation for further governmental economy. The people will be pleased to know that the drawing up estimates of expenditures of money paid by them in taxes will remain in capable hands.

FOR STEADY EMPLOYMENT.

Valuable data and recommendations on which the Hoover administration can base its program for the improvement of employment conditions are contained in the report of the Senate committee on education and labor which has made an investigation of unemployment. President Hoover is known to be deeply interested in this problem, and the country is looking to him for a practical plan of solution. The inaugural address, in which the President declared that "the larger purpose of our economic thought should be to establish more firmly stability and security of business and employment and thereby remove poverty still further from our borders," gives hope that this problem will be one of the first to be given attention by the new administration.

While the Senate committee makes a number of practical suggestions, it also points out that a scientific study of unemployment is impossible at this time, because statistics showing how many are out of work are not available. It recommends that the 1930 census include a count of the unemployed and that the Bureau of Labor be charged with keeping the statistics up to date thereafter. It is obvious that before the Government can deal intelligently with the situation, the number of jobless men must be determined and reason for their idleness established.

The Government should encourage full-time operation of industries that are now using labor for only a fraction of the year. However, there are many seasonal occupations which can not furnish work all the year round, and these demand special attention. The committee estimates that the country could save $2,000,000,000 annually by eliminating seasonal unemployment. Legislation is recommended to provide for the construction of public works in times when employment is slack. This is a means of relief which could also be made use of by the States and municipalities. It is encouraging to find Gov. Ritchie of Maryland and other State executives advocating adoption of the plan.

Other recommendations of the Senate committee are designed to encourage insurance against unemployment, and the development of employment exchanges by the States and cities in cooperation with the Government. It is not to be expected that the report to the Senate will be sufficient foundation for a solution of the problem; but it should furnish a starting point from which the new administration can work out a practical program for improvement of employment conditions.

TOM TAGGART. Tom Taggart, veteran Indiana political leader and one of the "grand old men" of the Democratic party, died yesterday in Indianapolis. Born in Ireland, he was brought to this country as a boy. His first job was as a waiter in the depot restaurant at Xenia, Ohio, a rendezvous of politicians, and it was as a listener-in that he made his first acquaintance with politics. In 1892 he was made chairman of the Indiana State Democratic committee and three years later he became Mayor of Indianapolis. In 1900 he was elected a member of the Democratic national committee, becoming its chairman in 1904. In 1916 he was appointed to the Senate to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Benjamin Shively.

Tom Taggart left his impress on the Democratic party. In the 1924 convention he directed the Ralston boom that might have proved successful as a result of the Smith-McAdoo deadlock had not Senator Ralston withdrawn his name. Last year he brought forth Evans Woollen as a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, and had Taggart not been prevented by illness from attending the convention Woollen might have been nominated. Probably to a greater extent as counselor, however, did Mr. Taggart influence the affairs of the Democratic party. To the hotel he owned at French Lick, Ind., came a steady stream of politicians seeking advice, information and suggestions. He welcomed them all and permitted them to draw deep from his store of knowledge and experience. He never forgot a face; he never failed to respond to the need of a friend. A host throughout the country will mourn his death.

TESTING AIRPLANES.

Accidents in the air resulting from experiments with new planes or new devices are rapidly decreasing. Once such accidents were responsible for a large percentage of the casualties in aviation, but the recent report of the Department of Commerce on civilian flying accidents for the last six months of 1928 shows that experimentation caused only 32 of a total of 672 crashes. At present most of the accidents in the air happen to planes engaged in commercial and pleasure flights.

The constant improvement of aircraft is one reason for the decrease in casualties from experimentation. Another significant reason is the development of scientific methods for testing planes and studying flight from the theoretical standpoint without the risk of life. Today every part of a plane is tested for structural strength, and the assembled machine is loaded with sand and dropped from a given height to determine its reliability. But the most interesting experimentation being carried on is the study of small models in wind tunnels, to measure the capacity of a given type of plane in varying currents of air.

The work of the Bureau of Standards in this field is described in a recent press bulletin by H. L. Dryden, chief of the aerodynamics section. Model planes fixed within wind tunnels by means of wires are subjected to winds created by huge fans. In one tunnel this artificial current may reach a velocity of 150 miles an hour, thus enabling the attendant engineers to determine the exact reaction of different models at all speeds. The performance of planes as to speed, climbing ability. &c., can be predicted with amazing accuracy. A number of improvements have resulted from experiments of this kind. This method of studying aviation and different types of air craft can not, of course, supplant actual testing of planes in the air. But it gives the engineer a chance to study problems of air navigation at a closer range than is possible from actual flight, and it removes the danger encountered in much experi-

ARMY AND NAVY BLIMPS.

The aerial inaugural parade was an expensive show. When fog descended Monday night three of the blimps that participated were forced to remain at Bolling Field, and, no hangar or mast facilities being available, emergency crews were mustered to hold them to earth. All Monday night the crews hung grimly to the mooring ropes of the Navy's J-3 and J-4 and the Army's TC-5, and the storm did not lift sufficiently Tuesday to permit their departure. On Tuesday night the storm increased, making necessary the emergency deflation of the J-3 and J-4. Only the TC-5 supvived the night safely, making its get-away yesterday morning.

The J-3 and J-4 were damaged during the deflation. Their store of helium, worth thousands of dollars, was lost. No one was injured during the wild 36-hour period, but men were pushed to the limit of endurance, holding grimly to slippery ropes attached to the swaying blimps, and slithering about in knee-deep

The incident indicates the need of facilities for handling lighter-than-air craft at Bolling Field. Until hangars or mooring masts, even if they be only of the so-called portable "stub" type, have been provided, blimps can not be safely sent to Washington. Yet it is desirable that these convenient aircraft should be available at all times against emergencies. The departments concerned are warranted in asking Congress to provide funds for building a lighter-than-air terminal at Bolling Field.

The world just seems rotten because the happy and decent people are the kind you never hear about.

It is true, as the editors agree, that senators shouldn't talk so much about war. But why drag in the last two words?

The 48,000 Government employes who lost a day's pay as the result of the inauguration holiday no doubt will vote the affair "all wet."

The natives of India are queer. Their religious prejudice has stirred up a number of fights, and yet they aren't having an election.

SECRETARY MELLON

From the New York Times.

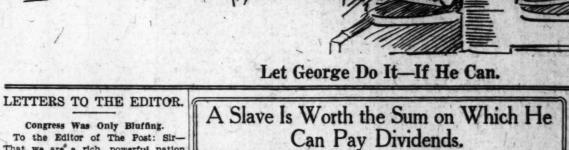

Mr. Hoover's decision to retain Secretary Mellon in his Cabinet had been foreshadowed, but some unusual aspects of it have not attracted attention. If he remains Secretary for the full term of the Hoover administration, his consecutive tenure of that office will have been, with one exception, the longest in the Treasury's history. The average term in office of the 48 Treasury Secretaries who preceded him was two and a half years; Mr. Mellon would by 1933 have served continuously twelve. Only Albert Gallatin, who conducted the public finances under Jefferson and Madison, has a longer record, and of Gallatin's twelve and three-quarters years ten months were spent in Europe as one of the plenipotentiaries to arrange the treaty which ended the War of 1812, while a substitute was named to manage the Treasury. Mr. Mellon is the only Secretary of the Treasury who has served continuously under three administrations.

There have been bankers and bank presidents at the head of the Treasury before Mr. Mellon, but the office has never before been held by one of the country's wealthiest citizens. That this should have occurred without a whisner of suspicion about motives of self-interest, except from one or two men with a personal grudge, and yet that one of the Secretary's most insistent policies should have been reduction of the supertax on the largest incomes, is extraordinary evidence of public confidence in his official integrity.

This attitude is based both on the Secretary's personality and on his visibly great achievements. Perhaps no American finance minister, if we except John Sherman and Alexander Hamilton, has accomplished with such entire success so immense a task in reorganizing the public finances and the public debt. It will doubtless be said, and quite reasonably, that Mr. Mellon was fortunate in the economic circumstances of the period; that the windfall of wealth, prestige and financial confidence which came to the United States in wartime provided the foundation without which his work would certainly have dragged and probably been less successful. Mr. Mellon's plans have been laid before a Congress which was never distinctly antagonistic to them, so that he can not hold the peculiar distinction which John Sherman won by putting through resumption of specie payments in the face of an actively hostile legislature. The Federal Reserve, an inheritance from the Wilson administration, has been a pillar of strength to Mr. Mellon's public undertakings; Sherman had to pick the most serviceable among the thousands of private banks to support his policies, and Hamilton had virtually to create the United States bank to make his financial reforms possible.

When all such allowances are duly made, Mr. Mellon's achievement with the public debt and the national balance sheet will always remain one of the notable chapters in our history. It was no easy task to persuade the lawmakers to continue war taxation a decade after return of peace, in order to redeem $9.200. 000,000 out of the $26,300,000,000 interestbearing indebtedness outstanding in 1919. Mr. Mellon will take especially high rank as a shrewd and accurate judge of the state of credit, whereby the terms for recurrent quarterly financing were repeatedly fixed on a basis more advantageous to the government that the market had deemed possible.

Whether he can expect in the next four years the quiet financial seas and favoring financial winds which have prevailed since his first year in office is another question. He is even now confronted, as the Treasury has not been since 1920, with the problem of adjusting interest rates for the March financing so as to meet conditions created by Wall street's money

By ROBERT QUILLEN HEN a man dies, people say: "How much was he worth?" And frequently they ask that question concerning the living. Their meaning is obvious. They wish to know the value of the man's possessions.

SCARCITY OF MONEY QUICKENS REACTION

Scores of Important Stocks Weaken Further Under Prolonged Selling.

CALL FUNDS 12 PER CENT

New York, March 6 (A.P.).—The stock market continued down hill today for the fourth consecutive session. Selling was accelerated by a severe scarcity of call money, which rose to 12 per cent for the first time since January 2, and equaling the peak rate of recent years. A few high-priced issues sold off from about 10 to as much as 45 points, while scarce of im-

As the rate was stepped up to 12 per cent a flood of selling poured into the market, which kept the ticker running for half an hour after the close.

The sharp tightening of money rates this week was not in line with expectahis week was not in line with expectations, as a slight ease was expected with the return of the month-end disburse-ments to the banks. Calling of loans has been heavy, however, with $30,000,-000 reported today, bringing the total of the week's reported withdrawals to about $100,000,000.

Banks Withdrawing Funds.

Banks are understood to have been withdrawing funds to pay off their borrowings from the Federal Reserve for the month end, and corporations said to have been withdrawing ids to meet the March 15 income-funds to meet the March 15 incometax payments.

New Treasury financing for March 15 of $475,000,000 in nine-month certificates was announced at $4\text{ per cent}, one-half of 1 per cent higher than the Treasury had to pay in connection with its last financing, in December. The subscription books open tomorrow; and if the issue is promptly subscribed, there is much talk that the New York Federal Reserve Bank may raise its rediscount rate on Thursday. It has been rumored about Wall street that the bank has been prepared to raise its rate for several weeks, but has deferred action pending the Treasury financing.

The day's business news, largely coming too late to influence the market, continued favorable. The iron and steel trade reviews were again optimistic. Iron Age said "Steel demand is broadening" and added "The growing strength of prices is also broadening in account in the second of the second strength of prices is also broadening in scope." pointing to increases in furnace coke, scrap, and indications of higher price for pig iron.

Dividend Rates Increased.

Two more copper companies increased their dividend rates, Utah stepping up its annual rate from $12 to $16 and Nerada from $2 to $3. Lambert Co., which has been paying $1.25 quarterly, with a 50-cent extra, put its stock on an $8 yearly basis. Several chain-store systems reported increased February gell back to 180% and closed at 182%. Bethlehem likewise made an early gain, only to close about 2 points off. General Motors lost about a point. In the rails, Erie was in demand for a time, but closed heavy with the rest of the group. International Silver was a strong point, selling up more than 6 points to a new peak.

A rally in the morning carried half a dozen coppers to new high ground, and American Express mounted 28 points. Later in the session, however, the coppers fell 1 to 3 points under the previous close, and American Express fell back 30 points. Such issues as Allied Chemical, Allis Chalmers, Chrysler, Crosley Radio, Commercial Investment Trust, Delaware and Hudson, Interna-tional Combustion, Johns Manville, New York Central and Packard sold down about 5 to 8 points.

The high money rates at New York were reflected by a general ease in foreign exchange rates. Sterling was slightly lower at $4.853-16 for cables, and the discount on the Canadian dollar was increased to more than one-half of 1 cent. The Spanish peseta and the Japanese yen dropped about 1-5 of a cent each to the lowest levels of the year.

New Chain Bank Planned.

Pinancing is being planned for a new national chain of industrial banks, it was learned yesterday. These banks will engage in the business of discounting acceptances, the morgage loan business, insurance business and sale of investment securities. As a nucleus it is proposed to take over the Industrial Finance Corporation, now the parent company of the Morris lan Co., its holdings in 107 existing banks, as well as in other subsidiary companies doing an acceptance and insurance business. The acquisition will be effected by exchange of junior shares of a company to be known as the Industrial Bank Shares Corporation. The deal will involve new financing in the amount of $13,000,000.

ember when you used to slip down the back cellar steps and "swipe" cookies like these from Grandmother's big cookie jar? She had to store them in the cellar to keep them soft and fresh. You can keep them handy anywhere because nowadays they're made with Crisco, a pure, sweet shortening which helps to make them fine flavored and moist-and keeps them so to the very last cookie.

1 eup Crisco 3/4 eup thick, sour milk 11/2 cups sugar 1/2 teaspoon soda 2 eggs, beaten 3 cups flour

1 teaspoon salt (1/2 cup sugar and 1 teaspoon nutmeg)

Blend Crisco and sugar, add beaten eggs. Add sour milk with sods dissolved in it and stir in flour sifted with salt. Don't roll dough-drop by spoonfuls on Criscoed pan. Sprinkle with mixture of sugar and nutmeg. Bake in moderate oven (350° F.) for 10 minutes. This makes 50 luscious

Soft Molasses Cookies (Mixing time: 10 minutes)

A letter from a man in Ohio tells us that Crisco cookies were left all winter in a summer camp and when found this spring were "amazingly" fresh and sweet. There is something amazing about Crisco's pure sweet flavor and the way it lends its flavor and fresh keeping quality to foods.

1 cup Crisco I cup brown sugar 1 cup molasses 4 cups flour

2 eggs well beaten 3/2 teaspoon soda 1 cup hot coffee 1 teaspoon vinegas 1 teaspoon salt

Blend sugar and Crisco, add well beaten eggs, molasses, spices and soda mixed with hot coffee. Then add vinegar and beat in the flour sifted with salt and baking powder. Stir well and drop from end of spoon onto Criscoed cookie sheet. Flatten with spatula dipped in water and bake in moderate oven (350° F.) for 10 minutes.

This recipe makes about 65 cookies.

3 teaspoons baking powder

Gascoigne in Mention for Radio Board

Hoover Has Two Places to Fill on Commission. Technical Men Needed. Good Men Have Been Hard to Obtain.

BY ROBERT D. HEINL.

One of the first tasks awaiting President Hoover is to fill in the ranks of the Federal Radio Commission by selecting two new members-one for the Eastern zone, in which the District of Columbia is located, and the other for the Middle Western zone, which centers the Middle Western zone, which centers about Chicago.

Batcheller, of New York, and C. M.
Janaky, jr., of Minnesota, President Coolidge's numinees. In the recess appointments it ls learned upon excellent authority that President Hoover, rather than resubmit these names at the present time, contemplates nominating other men.

This may not prove such an easy task, fo., though naturally the woods are full of politically deserving candidates at this particular time who are willing to leap into the Radio Commission, the recognized need of the commission is for technical radio men, and these are apparently pretty scarce. In the opinion of this writer an outstanding weakmess of the commission thus far has been the absence of men who have not had more of an engineering background.

It is understood the name of O. P.
Gascoigne has been proposed to President Roover as commissioner from the Eastern zone. Mr. Gascoigne was director of radio in the Hoover campaign and was formerly with Station WGAP in Washington, which was later merged with WRC. A long-time resident of the District, Mr. Gas. oigne maintains a legal residence in Mount Vernou, N. Y.
This might prove important, in view of the fact that residents of the District are not eligible for appointment.

Regardless, however, who may be sefected at the moment, if President Hoover can keep the Radio Commission the resignation of O. H. Caldwell, commissioner of the Eastern zone.

All this happened in leas than two years, the commission seemingly never having its full personnel, Judge E. O. Sykes, of Mississippl, being the only one left of the original five appointed.

At present, awaiting action by President Hoover, the three members of the commission who have been confirmed are "marking time" because dates have been set for hearings of so great importance that the present members feel that any new member of the commission should be present.

These hearings include the assignment of short-wave lengths to both the press and the aeroplanes of the country.

In addition to these pending hear-ings much of the court litigation pend-ing involves the first and fourth zones, who are not now represented on the ission has been evident for some days ring to the fact that until Monday mbers of the commission did no w whether the life of the commison would be extended after March 16 an administrative body or not. resident Coolidge signed the bill exending the life of the commission until December 31, of this year, among the left of the bills which became law.

Immediately shead of the commission is its reorganization for the forthcoming year, which carries with it the election of a chairman. Weither Judge Im. E. The meeting between Mendelssohn and Goethe will be the feature of the next hour that Musical Episode will present at 10:30 o'clock tonight at WMAL. These two great men were very appreciative of each other's talents, and, as a tribute to Goethe, Mendelssohn composed the B Minor Pianoforte Quartet and dedicated it to the poet. In return, he received a dedicatory poem from Goethe. The occasion tory poem from Goethe The occas on which this complimentary change took place occurred at their meeting at Goethe's garden house in Weimar in 1825. This meeting will be repro-duced in "Musical Episode."

The Quantico Marines will present a half hour from WJSV at 9:30 o'clock this evening, followed by an hour with the Columbia Trio.

All of the women members of the next Congress will be heard in a special program at 2:15 o'clock this afternoon through Station WRC. The feminine contingent of the Nation's legislators will appear en masse at the annual luncheon of the League for Political Education, to be held in the Hotel Astor. It is said to be the first time that the seven women members have been brought together at a public function.

I am on the schools committee and would like your views on the question of whether the junior high schools should have one session or two.

Answer—These children are pretty young and the school board should not try to ape the high schools. I suggest that you listen to arguments on both sides and finally support that schoolman who talks the most about the child and the least about his pet organization, building and courses. Mother vs. Daughter.

Mother vs. Daughter.

I have a thousand and one questions I want to ask you about managing my daughter. She wants to go out nights, to have a steady fellow, take 2-o'clockin-the-morning auto fides and attend jazs parties six nights a week. "Home to such a girl," as you said once, "is a place to go when everything else in town is shut up." You hit it that time. I never thought, when I read it, that I would be writing to you for help. But she has suddenly changed for the worse DISHEARTENED.

Answer-Your letter is the twenty-third on the same subject received this week. Consequently I sat down and listed all the questions, trials and tribulations that the present-day vogue for "self-expression" has wished upon mothers and fathers. I have analyzed the problem and worked out a solution in my laboratory of experience. And now I am sending you, with the compliments of this newspaper, my diagnosis

Meanwhile Coach Krug took com mand of a squad, including seven 1927 regulars, which reported for the Gallau-det team, and Coaches McAuliffe and Clark worked with a large force at

Only three of last year's varsity nine were missing at College Park. They were Luke Bromley, southpaw, and Curtis Mace, a right-hander, who bore the brunt of the Terrapin pitching assignments, and Walker Hale, shortstop. The latter is still in school, but will not come out for the team this spring, it is reported.

If gast experience means anything, Maryland already can figure to do better this year than last. The entire outfield of Roy Tansil, Gordon Kessler and Frank Leschinsky are back from the 1928 team, while in the old infield there are Jim Wilson, third base; Julie Radice, second base, and Wilfred Higgins and Fred Hetzel, alternating first basemen.

Six likely looking freshmen of last year are now ready to battle for first team berths. They are Henry Milburn, formerly of Central High School of this city; Harry Hess, ex-Baltimore Poly star moundsman; Melvin Derr, shortstop formerly of Hagerstown High; Rob.

Liska, Brown and Campbell.

Pitcher Irving Hadley was let off with light work today, due to the fact that tight shoes have caused several painful blisters on both feet.

Manager Johnson seems to be concentrating on Ad Liaks, Lloyd Brown and Guy Cantrell as the flingers having the best chance to become regulars. The first two named are being eased along, while Cantrell, a big fellow with a "rubber arm" is being given plenty of attention and considerable work because he is the type of fellow who needs action. Brown declares himself ready right now and asked to be used in Sunday's game, but Manager Johnson will hold him over until Tuesday, whan the Boston Braves will be met in St. Petersburg.

Scout Joe Engel drifted into camp this morning for a conference with Johnson and Griffith.

While Trainer Mike Martin was at the hospital, F. Reilly Baxter was in charge of the clubhouse and he did such effective rubbing work on the arms of Marberry, Braxton and John-son that he likely has worked himself into a regular job. Cantrell Spends Much Time Trying Change of Pace. Reports from the hospital are to the effect that Outfielder Spencer Harris, ill with tonsilitis, is making good progress and likely will be allowed to return to headquarters here tomorrow or Fri-

Pitcher Archie Campbell, although using no curves and only a half speed ball, spent considerable time this morning practicing a change of pace and control, with Coach Gharrity standing in the batter's box but doing no swinging. Gharrity, by the way, showed plenty of pep behind the plate in batting drill and surprised all by the manner in which he made a number of fine pegs to second. "Ox" Bool also gave his arm a thorough trial and lived up to his reputation, for being a whale of a thrower.

President Griffith is beginning to feel worried over the failure of Catcher Cliff Bolton to show up here. Word has been received from his home at High Point, N. C., that he started for camp a week ago last Sunday. Al Schacht suggests that perhaps he is coming by way of California. The Nat owner wired Bolton's home again today asking if anything had been heard from the young back stopper.

DISTRICT basket ball fans will ave the opportunity to see games in every class of the male division of the fouth Atlantic championship tournament on Monday night's opening program of the largest basket ball event ever staged in this section. The games will be played on the George Washington University court, which has been loaned The Washington Post, which paper is sponsoring the tournament in cooperation with the South Atlantic basket ball committee.

The records of the opposing teams indicate that some of the best basket ball of the tournament can be expected opening night. There is a game scheduled in each class, with two contests for unlimited clubs.

ruled in each class, with two contests for unlimited clubs.

The two heavyweight games have a touch of rivalry extending beyond the tournament. The Potomac Boat Club and W. H. West Co. Fives have been prominent rivals in independent ranks since the start of the season, while the other game finds suburban clubs clashing The Guards represent Hyatsville and need no introduction to tournament followers, while the Remsens are from Takoma Park.

The 145-pound class game will see the passing of one of the best teams in that section. Both the Harriman & Co. and Stewart Bros. Fives have been picked among the leading contenders.

Except for a few players who will be given a last chance tonight, the weighing of the players in the lighter classes his been completed. Those who failed previously will be judged between 7 and 8 o'clock at the Boys Club.

ROXIES MEE " J. C. C.

The "luck of the draw" has brought out an interesting situation in the A. A. U. basket-ball tournament, promoted locally by The Post. In the first round the Roxie A. C., one of the most diminutive but nevertheless one of the most formidable squads in the District, drew as its opponent the Jewish Community Center Six.

The Jewish Community Center Team is not only formidable but is also of considerable more heft than the Roxie girls, and for this reason the latter combination had expressed a hope that it would be drawn against any team in the senior section, in which it is playing, other than the Center team. ROXIES MEL" J. C. C.

is playing, other than the Center team. But as fate would have it the Roxie lassies will have their first chance in the tourney against the foe that they had hoped to meet at the last possible moment.

However, when the Roxie squad learned that it was paired with its most feared opponent in the opening clash an announcement came from the club reared opponent in the opening clash an announcement came from the club that it was ready. Many followers of girls' basket ball will witness this contest, as it is certain to be a hummer.

While the senior group is interesting through its well-known personages, the junior class is a source of attention because of the fact that but little is known of the majority of the clubs hereabouts. Aside from the Capitol A. C., which boasts of Ruth McChesney as a player and leader, little is known of the other three clubs that will compete for the A. A. U. and Post honors in the younger section.

An unanhounced entry in this section, the Frederick High School squad, has qualified for the tourney, and promises to make a strong bid for the title. Miss Elizabeth Boyle, formerly of the P. A. I., of Baltimore, is coaching the Frederick Six, which boasts of having won one title already this season, the Frederick County championship.

Two Husbands."

Dear Miss McDonald: In all of my acquaintances and business associations I have never yet met a male. I'll call him male, so as not to insult the race of men that could fill "Tess'" requirements, he just doesn't exist. "Tees" doesn't say so, but she probably wouldn't even date with a man that had ever kissed a woman, and wouldn't hear of one that was not a pattern of virtue's own reward.

My suggestion to "Tess," is that if she wants a husband that can fill her bill without his lying his head off, to go to some orphan asylum and adopt a baby boy and raise him, and even then to have him meet all her requirements, she would have to keen him locke" in a room, and take him to church on a leash, and let him have no contact whatsoever with the world. I'm married to a man, thank God, a man that smokes when he pleases, drinks occasionally, swears, does not attend church very often, has loved the women, and I have never suffered any ill effects for these "terrible vices," and I love him dearly, because he is a real, "he-man," and with all of these "terrible vices" against him, he has managed to be a very successful attorney and a well-thought-ef citizen in our community and is wonderful to his wife and baby.

I wish you could publish all of this even though it is a bit too long, to tell "Tess" that if she wants a husband, a home and happiness with a capital "H." such as I have and have had, and millions more have, to forget all of these foolish notions of hers, and make herself like it if he smokes, and not to nag him if he doesn't care to attend church every Sunday, and forget his past.

I don't see how "Tess," living in this age of drinking, smoking, swearing, tainted stories, and necking by both sexes, could be so narrow-minded. All this may be wrong, but it is only human nature, and we are not a bunch of sngels.

I wouldn't trade my man for all the I wouldn't trade my man for all the males in the world that were angels, and didn't smoke, drink, swear or pet.

Sincerely.

Dear Miss' McDonald: Will the girls who want to marry a man who does mot drink, smoke, swear or miss church ments. It is an excellent form of exercise for people who toe out and have a tendency to flatfoot and painful feet. The practical difficulty is that in order to excel a runner must have good foot and lower leg muscles, and the people with flat feet are weak in this group of muscles. People avoid the exercises at which they are poor.

In a school of physical education the flat-flooted should be kept at running. Running is a good exercise for the muscles generally since in that sport all the muscles of the body are brought into action. At the same time, running will not build up heavy body and arm muscles. In fact, heavy muscled people are seldom good runners. Running calls for long muscles with moderate sized bellies.

Se far as the shape of the chest and the muscles of its wall are concerned funning is good, but not an extra good, form of exercise. The two great organs located within the chest are the lungs and the heart. Running has no harmful influence on the lungs. Its effect on the heart needs to be watched.
